

Creative Movement Division

Creative Movement classes are offered for students ages 3-5. The syllabus was developed by Joan Wolfe and utilizes original music composed for each class by her husband and composer, Bill Wolfe.

Each class is thematically-based and the students are led through a series of movement stories and dance games. The creative play in each story enhances the development of fine and gross motor skills as they run, skip, leap, stretch, coordinate, isolate and move to the music.

Social skills are developed through collaborative and cooperative games. Inherent in this program is Ms. Wolfe's knowledge of early childhood development and philosophy of adult/child interaction.

The curriculum is designed to gently introduce these youngest students to a structured and safe classroom environment while instilling in them the physical and emotional confidence to explore and create.
